a |cohol.

- Taking more medication than prescribed can cause overdose.
- If you have any questions about your pregabalin/gabapentin medicine or side effects, or if you do not understand how to take your medicine, talk to the person who prescribed your medicine, your doctor, can help.

Do not allow others to take any pregabalin/gabapentin medicines given to you. Your medicine has been prescribed or specifically recommended for you by your prescriber and can be dangerous if taken by other people – it could even cause fatal overdose.

Always keep medicines out of sight and reach of children.

NOTE: This can be very serious and may cause death. Signs that you may be addicted to pregabalin/gabapentin include:

- Feeling that you need to take more medicine than prescribed, taking it more frequently or more than instructed on the pack — even though the medicine is causing unwanted effects on your overall health.
- Feeling that you need to take additional medicines (e.g. other pain relief medicines) to achieve the same relief.
